Philanthropy for an Interdependent World

January 30, 2008

To Whom It May Concern:

The Rockefeller Brothers Fund has provided grants to Nurturing Orphans of AIDS for Humanity (NOAH) for four years for its work with orphaned and vulnerable children. During this time, the Fund has supported a variety of projects, most recently a research grant to assess the impact of NOAH's interventions on improving the wellbeing of vulnerable children.

We have a candid relationship with NOAH, which illustrates its transparent approach to development. NOAH submits regular reports, providing accurate and analytical observations about progress on grants. Staff is available for queries and site visits and has satisfied our requirements throughout the partnership.

The financial affairs of NOAH are in order, as evidenced by their audited annual financial statements and regular reports. NOAH manages funds in a controlled and accountable manner.

NOAH has structured their model in an economical and sustainable way. It achieves large-scale impacts with low overhead costs due to the economies of scale. Furthermore, NOAH has positive impacts in the communities in which it operates, and delivers on its goals and objectives in an efficient and effective manner.

We recommend NOAH enthusiastically for its work to assist children impacted by HIV/AIDS and poverty to reach their potential. If you have any specific questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely yours,

Nancy L. Muirhead
